Father's Day is Sunday, June 16th, 2019, and fathers everywhere (is it fair to say especially in NYC?) deserve to have a great weekend—and an edible, or at least Instagram-worthy, breakfast in bed. Depending on the success of that breakfast in bed, you might also want/need to grab brunch before.

Below, all our suggestions for home-run dad gifts, including things that may not be dad-specific but would be highly appreciated, from fun ideas to the world's best knives set. We'll continue to update this page as we get closer to June 16th.

Big Five Tours and Expeditions

Big Five Tours and Expeditions recently launched their inaugural “Kid’s Council-approved” travel itinerary, the perfect gift for dad this Father’s Day. Big Five’s Kids Council consists of a board of children, aged 6 to 15, created to guide the company in developing travel itineraries that kids would enjoy as much as their parents. The very first tour, launched in February 2019, takes place in India and is available for booking throughout the year.

Highlights of this 13-day Itinerary include:

- Learning about conservation efforts in Panna National Park from conservation biologist Dr. Raghu Chundawat
- Discovering the world of Indian elephants at the Elephant Conservation and Care Centre in Agra, with an introduction to sloth bears
- Visiting the ancient Abhaneri step wells, dating back to the ninth century, used as the baths and reservoirs of the royals
- Riding on a generator-powered 'Juggaad', a truly eccentric local transport
- Visiting a shop that specializes in restoring classic Enfield motorcycle and Willys Jeeps
- Exploring India's rich cultural traditions through a puppet-making workshop in Jaipur
